CHILD CARE EXPANSION PLAN ‘A BEACON OF HOPE FOR HUNDREDS OF THOUSANDS OF NEW YORKERS’

All Our Kin Urges Lawmakers to Leverage Budget Negotiations, Make Plans a Reality

(New York, NY) - Following Gov. Hochul’s announcement of plans to make child care free for all NYC two-year-olds and Pre-K available across the state, Lara Kyriakou, Policy Director for All Our Kin, released the following statement:

“Today’s announcement demonstrates that The Empire State is ready to become a leader in child care reform. After years of struggling to make ends meet – particularly in the City, which has become impossibly expensive for many families – we now have a plan that is a beacon of hope for hundreds of thousands of New Yorkers.

“The impact of free child care for all two-year-olds in New York City cannot be overstated. While it will be a tremendous relief for families, it will also be a boon to the five boroughs. Instead of being forced to relocate, parents could work and live locally. As lawmakers determine how to fund the plan on a long-term basis, it carries weight that this plan could actually lessen the child care gap and bolster local economies.

“We applaud the efforts of Gov. Hochul and Mayor Mamdani, and look forward to collaborating with our lawmakers as they make this commitment a reality. This includes ensuring that family child care educators, a critical component of any expansion plan, are engaged in the planning process and finally have prospects of a living wage. As the majority of children under age three are in home-based care, the importance and opportunity for home-based educators and advocates to remain engaged in the planning process is paramount.

“While it is remarkably gratifying to see a groundswell of support for an affordable New York, we need affordability for all families, including those who provide child care.”
